ANNOUNCEMENT

Jennifer J. Connor recently became the Associate Editor of the Journal of Technical Writing and Communication, a leading international journal in technical communication. Since her editorial responsibilities encompass the "Announcements" section of the journal, she plans to include Canadian material whenever possible. CATTW/ACPRTS members wishing to inform international readers of upcoming conferences, workshops or other technical communication activities and events are invited to send announcements to Jennifer at the following address:

83 First Avenue,
Toronto, Ontario
M4M 1W9

Heartiest congratulations to Jennifer from all her friends in CATTW/ACPRTS on this appointment of distinction!

RON BLICQ HONOURED BY STC

The Society of Technical Communication has honoured Ron Blicq by making him a Fellow of the Society--a first for Canada and an additional measure of just recognition for this distinguished Canadian technical communications scholar, specialist, and past-president of CATTW/ACPRTS. Congratulations, Ron, from all of us!

Meeting of CATTW/ACPRTS

Ottawa, Ontario

Evaluation: Text, Teaching, Training

Like our 1992 meeting, our 1993 meeting will provide for two types of sessions:

(a) sessions of formal, research-based papers. Presenters of these papers may be eligible for SSHRC assistance with travel costs, if their own institutions cannot provide such assistance. Presenters who require travel funding should so indicate when they submit their proposals. All those who propose formal papers should take special care that their submissions demonstrate the research orientation of their proposals.

(b) "poster" sessions. Less formal than research sessions, these will offer 10-minute presentations which focus on classroom issues and strategies. Presenters of poster sessions are not eligible for SSHRC travel funding.

Annual Bibliography For Publication In Technostyle

In every spring issue of the journal, Jennifer Connor, our former editor, always published an updated bibliography of administrative and technical communication in Canada. Included would be all articles, books or reviews published by Canadian scholars and, of course, all articles published in Technostyle or any other Canadian publication.

Anyone interested in contributing to the journal by compiling a yearly bibliography should contact:

All CATTW members are encouraged to submit the titles of any recently published articles, books or reviews to the journal.

Functional Writing

is writing that works

Stewart Malcolm

ISBN-9699355-0-8
30 pages at 8.5 x 11

Functional Writing was developed for subject and operational experts who write as part of their jobs. It is a job aid that:

- covers only those techniques that users can learn on their own
- uses modelling as the primary learning method
- is concise – just the way functional writing should be.
