

CONTRIBUTORS

Natasha Artemeva

Natasha Artemeva, Past President of CATTW, is Assistant Professor at the School of Linguistics and Applied Language Studies, Carleton University, Ottawa, Ontario. She has taught undergraduate courses on engineering communication and graduate courses on rhetorical genre theory and theories of academic writing. Her research focuses on transition from university to workplace and such areas as technical communication, situated learning, and activity theory. Her work appeared in Technostyle, Technical Communication Quarterly, Language and Learning Across the Disciplines, Journal of Business and Technical Communication, Engineering Dimensions Magazine, and edited collections.

Jo-Anne Andre

Jo-Anne Andre teaches technical writing and rhetoric in the Communications Studies program in the Faculty of Communication and culture at the University of Calgary, where she has directed the Effective Writing Program for five years. Her research interests include professional writing, composition pedagogy, and the transition of writers from university to the workplace.

Barbara Schneider

Dr. Barbara Schneider teaches in the Communications Studies program in the Faculty of Communication and Culture at the University of Calgary. Her research interests include organizational communication, particularly writing and decision-making in organizations, research methods, and ethnomethodology and discourse analysis.